You can update the program not only for the current day, but also for tomorrow, with options allowing a download for up to the next 3 weeks. Automatic update can also be enabled, again from the settings screen. One of the most important things when it comes to such a program is the number of supported channels which, in our case, isn't quite impressive. Unfortunately, TV-Browser supports just a limited number of countries, such as the US, Germany, France, Italy or Spain. It does support plugins on the other hand, so you can add new features by installing separate add-ons. The configuration screen is a must check because it comprises tons of options regarding not only the plugins, but also the Tray icon, the interface and mouse clicks. We didn't notice a major computer slowdown while using TV-Browser, but an Internet connection is needed to download TV channel information. Overall, TV-Browser is a handy piece of software, but it definitely needs support for a wider array of channels and countries. Otherwise, it

Q: Conflict of IIS and TLS1.2 How can I disable "HSTS" for my domains if they are on IIS and have TSL1.2 enabled? I'm getting "The specific HTTPS response header field is not supported by this method." after doing so

Steps I've run all the steps found in the post mentioned above

Step 1: Solution Edit (same as in How to block a site when using TLS 1.2) Add %TEMP% as an exception for the hsts.external.clientheader.requests.exceptions section of the server.dynamic.clientconfig section of the web.config

Step 2: Disable SSL 3.0, TLS 1.0, and TLS 1.1 on the Server Certificates for Basic/Digest Authentication (AD)

Step 3: Install Windows Firewall with Advanced Security, allowing the TCP/IP connection to port 443. This fixes the "Cannot protect this IP in the local network because of issues with Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) processing." error you may receive when attempting to configure HTTPS in IIS 7 using TLS 1.2 on a Windows 7 machine.

Step 4: Add a site binding to the binding container in IIS Manager for every site that you want to enable HTTPS on: go to the server settings, then the bindings section. Add a binding for every site you want to have HTTPS on. Bindings > Server Bindings > Bind to URL > Value: Mode: "https"

Step 5: Configure IIS Manager to use the same certificates for SSL and HTTPS: under Protocols, select "HTTP" from

System Requirements:

System Requirements: The Lands of Tekumel was a monumental undertaking with a huge budget, the biggest budget yet for a Traveller product. The cost was borne by ASI in association with Obsidian Portal and licensed to Black Isle. It was built as a fairly straight port of the Earth One book, with a few changes to the Traveller universe. The focus was on the 'core' of the game (a giant cyberpunk city, reworked versions of the Known World and the Commonwealth, and locations from the Earth One universe). The rest of the
